

Giesecke & Devrient (G&D), based in Munich, Germany, is an international technology group with subsidiaries and joint ventures throughout the world. Founded in Leipzig in 1852 as a printer of securities, it later specialized in banknote production and currency processing. Today, G&D is also developing smart card solutions in a range of fields, including telecommunications, electronic payments, ID, health, transportation and IT security (PKI). G&D has long-term experience in the production of travel documents and is a proven expert in the smart card sector. This combination of fields of competency places G&D in an excellent position to meet the requirements for modern identification systems. More than 30 countries worldwide trust the passport solutions from G&D.
